Get Rid of UGLY PIMPLES this new easy way!

Amazing new medicated lotion developed by a doctor works wonders by clearing up complexion in one week or less!

DON'T let a bad complexion ruin romance, spoil your fun, cause you to be embarrassed, shy or ashamed. If you suffer from acne, the common external cause of pimples among young people, try this wonderfully effective medicated lotion that was developed by a practicing physician to clear up his own teen ager's complexion after other methods had failed. It has produced astonishing results for many thousands of others. It is GUARANTEED to help you or it won't cost you a single cent!

Doesn't Show On Your Face

Keraplex is a skin-colored lotion (NOT a greasy salve or ointment!) that is quickly absorbed by the skin and gets right down in the pores where its healing and antiseptic ingredients can go to work. After you have applied it, there is no trace left on the surface. In fact, it makes a perfect powder base for girls and a refreshing after shaving lotion for men... actually improves the tone of the skin! It is pleasant and easy to use — leaving your skin soft, clean and fragrant.

Boys and girls—if you have pimples on your shoulders or back, you can avoid embarrassment when they are exposed to view. For Keraplex keeps your shoulders, arms, back and chest wonderfully free from pimples—without soiling clothes, without messiness or greasiness!

Works in SIX Out of SEVEN Cases!

An analysis of RESULTS taken from actual case histories proves that Keraplex is successful in clearing up six of every seven cases of externally caused blackheads and pimples. It tones up the complexion generally, giving it a healthy, radiant glow.

Try This New Method Without Risking A Penny!

Keraplex is GUARANTEED to clear up your skin troubles or there will be NO COST to you whatsoever. If yours happens to be the ONE extra-stubborn case out of seven which Keraplex cannot help in one short week, it will cost you nothing to have tried it. Keraplex is sent to you with that simple, positive GUARANTEE!

SEND NO MONEY

You need send no money with the coupon below. When postman delivers your Keraplex lotion (in plain wrapper marked "Personal"), deposit with him only the modest price indicated below, plus a few cents postage. Then use your Keraplex morning and night for a full week, following the simple directions which will be enclosed.

If you do not SEE RESULTS that delight you — if you are not fully convinced that Keraplex IS clearing up your complexion — just return the empty bottle or unused portion and the purchase price will be refunded in full. Don't delay a single day. The longer you let your skin troubles go, the more difficult it will be to clear them up and get your complexion back to a healthy, clear, unblemished condition! BEGINNING OF THE END

INSTINCTIVELY, she put her hand behind her to catch the door from slamming shut. A muffled click reminded her that the office doors of Jaffrey, Fashions Inc. were well-mannered with special safety devices to prevent jarring noises.

The outer office was empty, and she wandered into the corridor, across the hall to the art department. Automatically, she seated herself at her drawing board, stared blankly at the charcoal roughs for Spring layout. Her slim fingers carefully lifted them from the easel.

When the portfolios were neatly packaged on her desk and all that remained was for her to grip them under her arms and leave, she looked about helplessly. Except for the bitter taste in her mouth, the entire episode seemed unreal.

Impulsively, she reached for the phone, nerves beating in her head like the undercurrent rhythms of deep water.

"Mr. Jaffrey, please."

"Sorry." Metallic, split-syllables, secretary voice. "Mr. Jaffrey has left for the day. Any message for . . ."

She replaced the receiver abruptly, shame and confusion surging through her.

Footsteps echoed through the outer corridor. Quickly, she pinned the triangle of red felt to her smooth black hair. If it were anyone from the office, she didn't want to speak to them . . . not now. Gloves . . . she had them with her that morning and she couldn't leave anything behind. She looked in her handbag.

"Hello. I wonder if you could help me?"

The sound of an unfamiliar voice soothed her, and she stopped the hurrying motions. The first thing she noticed was a good-looking face, a correct and approachable smile.

"Were you looking for someone?"

"No one in particular. That is anyone in particular." He laughed, and she looked at him politely, pleased to see the spontaneity of humor come easily to someone else. "I wanted to look up some old friends in the art department. I took the wrong elevator to begin with, and it made me late. Everyone still leave on the button?"

"Almost everyone."

"Oh, of course. Aren't you new here?"

"Not exactly."

He walked toward her, overcoat folded on his arm. The expensive satin lining flapped against the casual stride of long legs. Well-dressed for a man with an unusual perception for color flattery in the blended blues, she approved.

"I could leave a note for Shiffron." Shiffron was the head of the publicity department. He had always been kind to her. The stranger hesitated. Then, he reached for his jacket and took out a cigarette case, opening it with a one-handed maneuver. Smart.

She took the cigarette from him while he seemed to think.

"Light?" He leaned across the easel. His hand made a tiny, circular motion. "This your workshop?"

She nodded.

"And that . . .?"

She followed his eyes to the portfolios stacked on her desk. A slow flush colored her face to the tip of her hairline where it met the crimson angle of her hat.

"I sometimes take the whole kaboodle home with me," she said carelessly. "Helps my perspective when I compare it with the old stuff I've done. I've never limited my work to office routine."

"Good for you." He grinned broadly. "Amelia likes that sort of thing, doesn't she?"

Amelia. Her mind caught the name like an outstretched palm stung with a fast ball. Miss Jason, she thought automatically. Angrily, she thought of the spectacular art director whose prominence in Jaffrey Fashions, Inc. was a byword. She had thought so highly of Amelia Jason and her professional abilities. As Miss Jason's assistant she had worked desperately to justify herself in her superior's eyes. Not that her particular talent had to be forced. It was just to prove to Miss Jason that she really was better for the job than anyone had suspected from her sample artwork. When she was working on assignment her mind was energetic, lucid with ideas that her skilled hands could so easily translate into the deft pencil sweeps of picture panorama.

She was confident, convinced that she would make good. And now with the greatest rudeness, her first chance to prove herself in a professional high spot had been snapped away from her with the trite explanation that she "wasn't getting the feel of it." She could still see Miss Jason's thin, red mouth rounding the vowels of each word, drawing them out to a stinging insult with a haughty, so-sorry smile.

But now, uncertainty about all her efforts and talents nagged at her. Miss Jason had fired her, hadn't she? Adding to the disgrace was a sudden two-week termination check. She wasn't even to be allowed the dignity of a final trial period.

"Amelia?" She looked coldly at the personable, young man and envied the balance of success in his life that gave him his clothes and his self-assurance. "She's in the business offices if you care to see her. At least, she was five minutes ago. And now if you'll excuse me, I really . . ."

"Pencil and paper? That note I mentioned . . ."

She whipped out a pencil from her purse, and in her brusque movement the pink termination slip fell upon her desk. Quickly, she shoved it into her purse and handed him a blank paper.

Pointedly, she looked at her watch.

"This will just take a minute." He winked at her. You didn't call a thing like that conceit any more, she thought hopelessly. You called it personality. "You see, I would like you to deliver this personally, Miss . . . Miss . . ."

"Woods. Carol Woods."

"Thanks ever so much," he said.

She waited until he was finished. Inevitably, he would ask to assist her to the elevator.

"No," she said firmly. "I have some other details to look after."

Surprisingly, he didn't insist, and the last whisk of him was out the door. She felt somewhat disappointed.

The impossible turn of the day kept running through her mind. Sadly, she opened and shut the desk drawers for the last check-up before she would summon the elevator boy to help her leave.

When she remembered the note to Shiffron, a sickening feeling went through her. She would never return to Jaffrey Inc., never again. And if personal delivery was so important, she would leave it at the desk downstairs to make certain that the clean-up squad didn't carry it off with them had she left it at Shiffron's desk.

She picked up the envelope. With a final feeling of perplexity she saw that it wasn't addressed to Shiffron at all, but to her.

"My dear Miss Woods:

I am inclosing the name and address of the art agency I own and operate to the exclusion of no talented person, even if she is better than me. Not that it makes me better than Amelia (bless her cold heart) because I can't be replaced for reasons obviously financial.

"She fired me once, too, because I was too good. Shiffron told me about you, and that's why I came to see him. But I was a little late, and as far as he knew you were scheduled to be fired.

"It's too bad about Amelia, but she can't take competition. Your young pride tells me that you hadn't caught on to that angle of it. Come down to see me in the morning. We'll talk business first.

Sincerely,

Richard B. McClelland

Her eyes opened wide and she put the note down and started to think the thing out for herself. What a break it had been for her that she hadn't gotten Jaffrey in. She would have made a fool of herself, asking for an extended reprieve as she had meant to do.

Suddenly, she forget that she had ever questioned her abilities. She was good, very good in fact, and she deserved a salary far better than Jaffrey, Inc. was paying her. She read the last part of the letter: "We'll talk business first."

She smiled to herself, Funny how only a short time ago she had felt so miserable, so heavy-hearted at the thought that she had been fired, that her career was more of a nightmare than the dream she had wanted it to be. For now her hopes sparkled. Her heart sang with an effortless high C. The only trouble was that the new job was less on her mind than Richard McClelland. Getting to know an interesting young man like that would be quite a pleasant career in itself!
